EDMONTON REPORT

EDMONTON: Why is your town where it is? Sounds like a very inconsequential query, doesn't it? But it is one of the first things Alberta's town planners try to determine in preparing plans for community development.

Once they know why a town has developed in a certain location they can better plan for its future development.

The province's smaller cities and towns are finding that town planning can help improve their surroundings and aid them in mapping out a program of orderly growth that will pay off in future years. Most of Alberta's towns are growing, some of them rapidly, and the need for a plan to direct the growth becomes apparent as streets, utility services, schools and parks have to be developed to serve increasing populations.

Showing the way for towns, most of whom cannot afford full-time technical planning staffs, is the town and rural planning division of the provincial department of municipal affairs under Director H. N. Lash. He says he has 12 requests on file from towns desiring general plans drawn up by the planning staff. It is enough to keep the division busy until 1953.

Besides the preparation of overall general plans the division answers many smaller problems encountered by secretary-treasurers and town councils. Advice on many things is asked. For instance Olds recently wanted the division to clear up difficulties with zoning regulations, while Vulcan was helped in the matter of school sites.

In the preparation of general plans, Brooks was one of the first to receive help. Once the plan has been completed and adopted by the town, the division continues to watch its development and is prepared to step in with technical aid should the town require it.

A general plan is nearing completion for Grande Prairie and should be received by that Northern centre before long, Mr. Lash reports.

The proposals drawn up for a town by the staff are only general and it is left to the individual town to work out the details.

In presenting a general plan the technical staff shows the areas the town should open for development; in what sequence they should be opened, and the most economical way of developing them. They indicate the size of the problem the town faces in various respects and prepare estimates of probable capital expenditures which will be needed to adhere to the proposed plan.

Actually town planning is not new. What is new is the extent of its acceptance by town and city authorities. The first Town Planning Act was passed in Alberta in 1913, then was replaced by the Town Planning and Preservation of Natural Beauty Act in 1929. Many towns set up town planning commissions in 1929. The members were volunteers and in most cases worked with vigor, but without technical help.

Grande Prairie seems to have been in the forefront of planning in smaller centres, coming out with a building bylaw in 1931. It was based on one prepared by the provincial town planning office of that time.

The late H. L. Seymour, director of town planning for the provincial government in 1931, outlined many requirements of good town planning that only now are beginning to find general acceptance.

Town planning, from a provincial standpoint, fell on bad days in 1932 when the Brownlee government found itself forced to take economy measures and chopped the town planning office. From a town planning budget of $15,350 in 1931, the division was placed under the department of public works and given $1,500 for minor matters. It was a slow return for town planning and for many years the division's major concern was regulating development along provincial highways.

The return took on force about four years ago. Today the division's budget is pushing the $100,000 mark, while throughout the province, counting the expenditures of cities and towns, Mr. Lash estimates that about $250,000 was spent on town planning last year.

Many pulp and paper limits contain today more wood than they did 20, 30 or 40 years ago.

Of the 500,000 square miles of forest area in Canada presently classed as accessible and productive, 40 per cent is unoccupied.

Swathing Operations Start

Rain Holds Up Harvest Throughout District

A light rainfall that lasted for several hours on Tuesday brought a halt to all swathing operations in this area, although clearing skies on Wednesday meant that an early resumption of harvesting could be expected.

In most parts of the district, swathing of spring wheat is just getting nicely started this week, although many fields, particularly west of town and in the hilly areas of the district, will require several more days of ripening before they can be cut.

Crops in the Vulcan area are about ten days later than normal and an early frost of snowfall would mean the loss of many thousands of dollars. A better-than-average crop is expected in all parts of the district if it can be harvested safely.

Ducks are already starting to menace some early-swathed fields of barley and wheat, and reports of duck damage to crops will likely increase as swathing becomes farther advanced.

Local elevators are plugged with wheat, with very little grain moving out, and there has been an unprecedented rush of materials for building granaries.

Evolution of Wheat Varieties

With electrical storms occurring rather frequently, rural and suburban householders should make sure wires and electric appliances are properly grounded, warns Mrs. V. G. Macdonald, Supervisor, Home Economics Extension Service, Alberta Department of Agriculture. This is insurance against possible fires, accidents and burnt out electric equipment when lightning strikes, she says.

Grounding means providing a safe and easy path for lightning to reach the ground. It is not safe to let lightning find its own path for it may jump through the house, striking an occupant or ruining the electric appliances or wiring. Grounding wires lead the electricity to metal rods driven well down into moist ground or to metal plumbing pipes which carry it off into moist earth. Grounding wires should be no smaller than No. 6 AWG which in stranded form is about the size of a lead pencil. The metal rod or pipe for grounding must be driven into permanent moist earth not less than 8 feet in to the ground. In some dry areas the soil is not permanently moist 5 feet down so special arrangements for grounding must be made. For homes having their own well-water systems the driven grounding rod, located where the electric wires enter the house, should be connected to the metal water pipes for extra safety. A good lightning rod system protects homes from damage but lightning rods also need proper grounding.

Spruce and balsam account for 84 per cent of the wood used by the Canadian pulp and paper mills.

The Weather

Rain and cooler weather Tuesday of this week, clearing on Wednesday.

Weather Prophet
A local old-timer, who can't be any more wrong in his predictions than the government meteorologists, says we can expect snow and frost about the middle of this month, and that the weather will then clear up and be fine for a month or more. (This isn't necessarily the opinion of the Advocate—we'll just wait and see).

MOUNT ROBSON SCALED AGAIN

Five young men from the United States recently conquered Mount Robson (12,972 feet), the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies.

They were the first mountain climbers to reach the summit since August 1939, when it was scaled by three others.

The five Americans made four camps on the mountain on their way to the top, the highest at 11,500 feet. The final climb of nearly 1,500 feet was made in six hours, notwithstanding the grueling experience of crossing over soft snow fields on the glaciers.

Three Types of Permits

Province Can Issue Area Permit For Killing Ducks

Farm crops in Alberta will have greater protection from ducks and other migratory water fowl this year as the result of new regulations announced by the Department of Lands and Forests.

Three types of permits are now available for scaring or killing ducks in areas where they are causing extensive damage to crops previous to the opening of the hunting season. These include an individual permit for killing migratory birds; a general area permit for scaring birds; and a general area permit for killing birds.

Heavy rains during the last two years have accounted for a substantial increase in the number of ducks in Alberta, with the result that the old regulations were inadequate to meet the situation. The new crop protection regulations were prepared after careful study by the Federal Government and the Prairie Provinces.

One of the main differences in the regulations is that responsibility for the issuing of permits to farmers has been transferred from the Federal to the Alberta Government. Permission to shoot or scare unwanted water fowl now can be obtained without waiting for approval from Ottawa. Another revision eliminates the restriction of seven helpers to one killing permit.

The individual permit is issued by a Game Officer or the R.C.M.P. to any person owning, leasing or residing on a farm less than 1,280 acres in size. This permit allows the farmer and any of his employees to kill ducks and geese damaging his crops.

The general area permits are issued by the Fish and Game Commissioner where individual permits cannot successfully cope with the number of migratory birds damaging crops. The areas covered by the permits are specified by the Alberta Government and include those where crop damage is particularly heavy.

The scaring permit allows any resident of Alberta to use firearms for scaring birds within a specified area. If this method is not successful a killing permit may be issued, allowing any resident of Alberta to shoot migratory birds within the area.

In order that farmers may be protected against over-zealous hunters, the Game Act prohibits the shooting on any posted land without the consent of the owner. In addition, the Criminal Code of Canada allows the owner to remove any persons who may be trespassing on his land.

In announcing the new regulations, the Department of Lands and Forests stated that blinds, decoys, duck or goose calls cannot be used, and the shooting within 50 yards of any water area is prohibited. Also, the actual shooting of migratory birds is limited to fields where agricultural crops, either standing or cut, are found. This does not include stubble, summer-fallow or pasture land.

Injured In Car Accident

Jack Metcalf, Vulcan business-man, who was seriously injured Sunday in a traffic accident near Innisfail, has regained consciousness and his condition shows improvement, according to word reaching friends here Tuesday afternoon. He is a patient in the Red Deer hospital.

Mr. Metcalf had been visiting his parents in Innisfail. Mrs. Metcalf and their two young daughters have been visiting relatives in Seaford, Ont., and are now enroute home.

One man, Joseph Thomson of Innisfail, was killed in the car-truck collision.

Reason For Grain Congestion

The production of wheat, oats and barley in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta has averaged 1,200,000,000 bushels in the three seasons from 1951 to 1953 inclusive. The peak yield was in 1952 when the production of such grains totalled 1,326,000,000.

In the ten years from 1941 to 1950 average production of these grains in the prairie provinces was 820,000,000 bushels. In these last three seasons grain production has exceeded the ten year average referred to by 380,000,000 bushels which figure is the long-time average of Canadian wheat production.

The present congestion in country and terminal elevators is due directly to the unprecedented grain production. Never before have the prairie provinces produced such a volume of grain and existing facilities were never expected to handle such a huge bushelage. Export sales by the Wheat Board have been at record levels but not sufficient to clear up the surplus.

If farmers have a thorough appreciation of the situation, they will realize the difficulties in providing handling facilities and in disposing of the huge quantities of grain which have been produced.

SERVICE BOARD NOTES

H. S. Burns, Field Supervisor

This summer has been an active season in regard to weeds and our County sprayers have been kept busy. Our four small power sprayers and three hand sprayers have been very useful but are very inadequate to look after the entire County and we would like to impress upon the farmers, benefits that could be obtained by having a jet spray of some kind owned by six or eight or a dozen in one neighborhood. In this way the cost would be small and you would be able to do the work when it should be done. The idea is to have something powerful enough to reach from the roadside to a patch of weeds along the fence, or to reach into a wet place that can not be reached with a truck or tractor. In the last month many places that have been wet for the last three or four years, are now dry enough to get in with a tractor, many of these places have been a harboring place for bad weeds and this fall would be a good time to go in these places and get them back into cultivation. There are many theories as to how Sow Thistle came to make such inroads to our County in the last year or two, but the fact remains that they are here, and it is up to each individual to do his part in controlling this weed. We think the wind is the main carrier, although ducks probably carry it from one part of the country to another.

Some of the chemicals that we are using this summer such as Polybor Chlorate are very corrosive and will clog the sprayers if they are not rinsed out with clean water after use. This is a very good weed killer, fireproof and nice to handle. The solution should also be kept well agitated when in use.

The pulp and paper industry chiefly uses logs unsuitable to, or not large enough for the production of good lumber.

Teacher Shortage

The teacher shortage is again being felt this year, and will likely still be evident some years to come.

Many reasons have been advanced for the lack of teachers, but it really boils down to one easily-seen fact. New teachers generally enter the profession at about the age of 19, which means that the young people taking up teaching as a career today were born in the early- or mid-thirties. As many of us too well remember, those years were depression years. The marriage rate was low and the birthrate was low. But it is the generation of those lean years which is being called upon to provide teachers now. The birthrate has been high since the end of World War 2 and the school population has grown tremendously.

To put it simply: There just weren't enough future teachers born in the 30's to meet the present-day needs. And the shortage will likely continue for a few years yet.

Labor Day

In its original conception Labor Day was one set aside to honor the industrial worker and the achievements of trade unions. Today it is still marked officially only by organized labor. Everyone else takes a holiday, but pays little attention to the significance of the day itself.

Yet the day has a meaning for all of us. Trade unions themselves would be the first to acknowledge that the day of outright hostility between labor and management has ended; that narrow-mindedness on both sides has no place in the building of a greater Canada. And just as the factionalism of yesterday is outdated, so has the significance of Labor Day moved with the times.

On September 7th, every employed person in Canada, from the company president down to the office boy, will be taking a holiday. It is these millions of people, whether they belong in the labor or the management sections of industry, who are contributing to the building of Canada.

There lies the real meaning of Labor Day—Canadians laboring to achieve a better, more prosperous Canada; a finer place in which to live and bring up their families. Let there be trade union parades and celebrations on September 7th, but let there also be a moment's reflection by each of us on the broader concept of labor in Canada—the creation by our own free efforts of the kind of country we want our children to inherit.

THE MARCH OF THE WHEAT VARIETIES

From the day when wheat growing was attempted in a serious way on these prairies, soon after 1812, around 50 different varieties have been tried out. Of all these, however, only a few were really successful. The first important variety was Red Fife, discovered in Ontario in 1842, emigrated to the United States and brought from the United States into Manitoba soon after 1870. Red Fife completely displaced several varieties then in use by the settlers. Then followed a number of varieties in a search for an earlier wheat than Red Fife; and the great Marquis appeared in 1911. Then followed a number of other varieties in a search for a still earlier variety than Marquis; in particular Red Bobs (then called Early Triumph in 1921 and Garnet in 1926, which were found satisfactory by farmers. And then, to resist stem rust—Thatcher in 1935 (which still dominates) and a number of Canadian produced rust-resistant varieties, i.e. Renown, Apex, Regent and Redman. In 1951 appeared the new race of rust 15-B to which all these varieties are susceptible. But now comes C.T. 186 (not yet licensed) which is resistant to 15-B but not to several other races of rust. —H. G. L. Strange.

Yes, many farmers are going to follow the advice of their neighbors and switch to the Melroe Pickup this year. It picks much cleaner and is much easier to operate than any other pickup on the market. The cost is not much when the pickup will save you the full amount on as little as 60 acres—ask the man who has used one.

For further information see your dealer

This Pickup will fit most popular types of combines.

After the program, the guest of honor was given several balloons which she broke and found inside each one a note telling her where she would find the gifts. Mrs. Connie Stettner and Mrs. Mabel Evans carried in the decorated basket and the presentation was made by Mrs. Joy Laczko.

Seated at the bride's table to assist in the opening of the gifts were Mrs. Akitt, Mrs. Rosenkranz, Mrs. Belle Greene and Rosemarie Rosenkranz. Mrs. Akitt thanked her friends for the many lovely and useful gifts which she received. The hostesses then served a dainty lunch bringing the evening to a close.

Growing Fast

U.S. population, growing at more than 2.5 million a year since 1947, has now passed 160 million mark. Adding a native-born citizen every eight seconds, an immigrant every two minutes, U.S. is actually increasing its population faster than India. However, it stands only fourth in world populationwise, with Chinese numbered at 450 million, Indians at 365 million, Russians at 200 million.

School Book Rental

For the first time, a school-book rental scheme is to be tried out in the County of Vulcan. This will apply to all students in Grades 3 to 12. At the present time, nearly all the necessary school texts are in the school. On the first day of school, it is proposed that these texts be rented in sets to the pupils of each grade. The attached list shows the texts that will be rented, their retail cost, and the amount of rental that will be charged for the use of a set of texts for one year. Grades 1 and 2 are not included in the rental scheme. The books that they use are expended during the course of the year's work and are therefore sold outright. These books are listed and the retail price of them is shown. They will be sold by the teacher to the pupils at 15% discount. In each of the other grades, a certain number of work books are used, these again will be sold outright to the pupil. This scheme is optional. No pupils need take part in it if they do not care to. However, it is expected that those pupils that wish to take part in the rental scheme will rent complete sets of books. It is hoped that this scheme will prove successful and while providing the use of the books at a reduced rate will, at the same time, permit the quicker operation of the school due to the elimination of delays while the pupils await delivery of their book orders.

Famous Last Words...

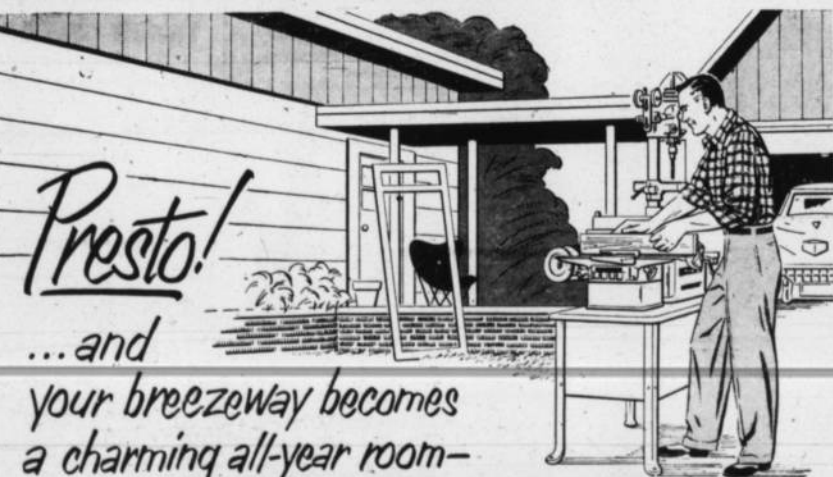

Unclogging, oiling, and adjusting farm implements while they are running are the major causes of 30 per cent of farm-work accidents. Don't you take a chance! If something is wrong or needs adjustment, turn off the power before you investigate.

Avoid stepping over or under moving belts; don't wear loose-fitting clothes around machinery; keep guards in place on power shafts and chains. By taking these precautions, you can be doubly sure your farm will be a safe place to work... to live.

The official opening of the new Armada Memorial Centre took place last Friday night, Aug. 28, in the form of a gigantic dance. A huge crowd from Armada and surrounding towns of Milo, Vulcan, Lomond, Travers, Vauxhall, Enchant and even Calgary and McLeod was on hand to enjoy it. Shortly before midnight, Mrs. M. Dawson, now of Vancouver, but an oldtimer of the district, dedicated the hall to the boys of the district who gave their lives in honor of their country in World War II and also to those who were fortunate enough to return home again. Then she cut the ribbon which officially opened the Armada Memorial Centre. To mark the occasion the hall was gaily decorated with red, white and blue streamers and bouquets of flowers. Fraser's Orchestra donated the music and a special vote of thanks is extended to them from the community. I have been asked to thank anyone and everyone who had a share in making this opening dance the success it was. Also we extend a hearty welcome to the many faces present on Friday night to come back again another time and participate in the enjoyment of our new achievement. After supper draws were made for the various articles so kindly donated by several business firms of Vulcan to help raise funds. Special thanks is extended to them also. Mrs. H. Craine then entertained with her accordion after which several of the ladies served lunch.

However, all enjoyed a very fine trip.

The Meekest Mice

Irate letter in Hamilton Spectator, August 14, suggests strike nonsense may some day be ended by wives of the men concerned. It said in part: "I am a striking truck driver's wife with three small children, and I think this strike is the silliest thing I ever heard of, and so is their union. The big shot tells you to go on strike, so you do. Then about a week later you don't show up for picket duty for a day or so. The next day you get a letter telling you that if you don't show up for picket duty, you will be fined $100. After you have waited for about 10 days to collect the measly $15 they pay you for compulsory picket duty, they have the nerve to hand you $12 because the other $3 went for union dues. I wonder how many of the truck drivers would accept that much from their employers for a week's pay. Don't tell me they are men, because as far as I'm concerned, they're the meekest mice I have ever heard of—including my husband."

BERRYWATER

Miss Isobel Turnbull of New Westminster, B.C. and Miss Jennie Pardow of Vancouver are guests this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Oldfield, enroute home after a holiday spent in Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Martin and family of Kimberley, B. C. were visitors last week at the Reg. Stein home.

Miss Jessie Sinclair accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Austin of Calgary spent Saturday at the home of provincial board of health assumed a heavy responsibility last week and ordered a two-week postponement of the scheduled Sept. 2 opening of all Alberta schools as a precautionary measure in the attempt to stem the incidence of poliomyelitis.

They say that two major factors were the basis for the decision. First, it is the second most serious polio outbreak in Alberta's history. Second, incidence of the disease is fairly generally distributed through the province, with at least one case for about every 25 miles in the areas of settlement.

The responsibility is heavy not only from a purely educational point of view involving the loss of two weeks' classroom experience. Medical opinion is not clear cut on the value of closing schools as a polio preventative.

Some medical men point out that although schools may remain closed, the children the measure is supposed to protect quite often ignore the other suggestions of health authorities, such as staying out of crowds and getting plenty of rest. Say those of this opinion: "In their classrooms the children are relatively quiet and not so susceptible to chills and tiredness." The responsibility, therefore, of keeping the children from becoming over-tired and out of large gatherings seems to rest on the parents.

On the other hand, of course, school opening as usual would mean that many children who otherwise would not be found in crowds would be thrown together to increase the chances of contracting the disease from a carrier.

It has been suggested that the action of some local boards in ordering a postponement of school opening before the provincial order was made was a concession to public opinion. The suggestion has been made by medical authorities who question the value of postponing the opening only a week.

The board's decision was made at a time when the province's polio total for 1953 reached 301, with eight deaths listed officially. Some of the cases occurred early in the year and were viewed as "carryovers" from the 1952 outbreak. Meanwhile in Manitoba the total was over the 1,000 mark, with 25 deaths reported and in Saskatchewan 345 cases and 22 fatalities.

In an effort to prevent alarm over the crippling disease, health officials point out that whooping cough takes more lives than polio.

Alberta pest control officers, particularly those in the eastern part of the province, are on their own now in keeping rats out of the province. The modern piper, N. L. Poulin, brought from Manitoba in June, 1952, has finished his part of the work after rat-proofing 4,800 square miles. The buffer zone extends 200 miles between the Cypress Hills and Provost and 24 miles in depth west of the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary.

Generally co-operation of farmers was good, government officials say, although in some cases an "I don't care what you do" attitude was taken. The extent of infestation was indicated following the discovery of 121 rats beneath a 14 by 18 chicken coop that was filled with carbon monoxide gas about five miles inside the boundary, north of Acadia Valley.

But it is felt that the rat invasion of the province has been stemmed and a program, to be announced shortly by the minister of agriculture, is being drafted to keep the province as rat-free as possible. The methods of Poulin were studied by control officers in those eastern areas and they will continue to watch for signs of any major return of rats. Agriculture men still are asking farmers in the danger areas to keep their buildings clean and to notify the control officer of any signs of rats.

THE CHOICE OF EXPERIENCE..

It's Got the Teeth to Get the Tough Crops

Here's one reason why so many farmers rate the Case "A" as the "most capable combine ever built." Its cylinder is proportioned just right for full-width feeding of windrowed crops . . . and it's a cylinder that puts teeth into threshing of tough, tangled crops. Full-length rack and Air-Lift cleaning provide extra capacity for finishing the job.
